

Surry Records

1652

Surry County was formed in 1652 from the portion of James City County south of James River. It ran from the river to the North Carolina border and was bounded on the southeast by Isle of Wight County and on the northwest by Charles City County (after 1703 Prince George). In 1723 the southern portion was cut off to form a part of Brunswick County (for which new courts were not set up at the time) and additional Surry land was added to Brunswick in 1732 when the courts of that county began operation. The middle portion of original Surry County was formed into Sussex County in 1753 and then attained its present boundaries.

Gov. Spotswood appoints Capt. John Poythres Sr. to serve with Colonel John Hardyman, Major Joshua Wynne and Captain Ffrancis Mallory as members of the Commission to investigate the Virginia-North Carolina line. They are to examine under oath "such ancient inhabitants of Prince George, Surry, Isle of Wight and Nansemond counties and discover the truth as to the said bounds between the said colonies." Also they were to ask the "ancient and intelligent indians of the Nottoway, Meherins and Nansemond nations," what they knew about the area. Among the old inhabitants of Prince George county deposing were: Robert Bolling, Gent. aged 61, who "hath known the Nottoway river for 37 years or more" .. and "Major Wynn's quarter is on the sight of the old Nottoway Indian town." Diary of William Byrd II of Westover:

“.....After dinner we sat in council concerning the Indians and some of the Tributaries came before us who promised to be very faithful to us. It was agreed to send Peter Poythress to the Tuscaroras to treat (with) them and to demand the Baron Graffenriedt who was prisoner among the Indians. It was also resolved that the militia of Prince George, Surry, and Isle of Wight should rendezvous at Nottoway town on Wednesday next and the Governor [Spotswood] be there with them to show some part of our strength to the Indians. In the evening came several gentlemen and Mr. Bland among them with letters from the Governor of Carolina which told him how backward the people of that country were to (advantage) themselves. About 10 o'clock we went to bed. Colonel Ludwell and I lay together. I neglected to say my prayers but had good health, good thoughts, and good humor, thank God Almighty”.

Footnotes to passage above:

Peter Poythress: “An Indian trader and interpreter.”

Baron, etc: Baron Christopher de Graffenriedt, a Swiss, who was instrumental in settling Swiss and Palatine Germans in North Carolina. He, with John Lawson, surveyor-general of North Carolina, was responsible for the settlement of New Bern, North Carolina. When the Tuscarora Indians revolted in 1711, De Graffenriedt and Lawson were captured. De Graffenriedt was later released but Lawson was burned at the stake.
