Vogt, John & Kethley, Wm.	Mecklenburg County, Virginia Marriages 1765-1853. 302 pgs. Brunswick County was established in 1720 as part of the economic expansion of tobacco cultivation into Southside Virginia. However, the new county did not commence to function as a separate political entity until 1733. The early marriage records of this county do not begin until 1750. Along with Dinwiddie and Amelia counties, Brunswick County forms an important "stem" county for the examination of the Southside in the eighteenth century. All three counties derived from parent Prince George County (1703).
